MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Carlaimas Greeting-Signs of Coming Happiness—A Day Among Dolls and Hobby Horses—French Finery, Japan Laboriousness and American Skill—Political, Social, Moral, Immoral, Nonsensical and Other

"A merry Christmas to all !" This greeting has beome so customary and pre-eminently the embodi-ment of the "compliments of the season" that it night be judged a want of proper training or of colite manners not to prefix it to an article on the There is certainly nothing wrong in it, and it tends to impart a joylul spirit to the intercourse between writer and reader from the start. And since this joyful greeting is as cheap as a gruff word, and as joyful greeting is as cheap as a grun word, and as the Spaniards are right in saying that more flies are caught with one drop of honey than with a whole ingful of vinegar, there can be no reason why the wish for a merry Christmas to all may not be re-peated a hundred and a thousand times, so long as it is in season and not out of it.

it is in season and not out of it.

Take it as you may, from a religious or any other point of view, there is a something in this holiday to make the heart merry and to arouse joyful thoughts. The Christian, from the earliest days of Christianity. at least since about the middle of the second century f our era, looks upon it devoutly as the anniversary f the nativity of the Saviour of man. As such the day is one to be held in holy reverence by all whose religious faith is based upon the doctrines promul-gated by Him born at Bethlehem, whether adhering to the Catholic or any other interpretation of those doctrines. Though critical historians may, as they have done, deny the correctness of the Church in fixing the date of His birth on the 25th of December, that date has been agreed upon since the fourth cen-tury by the whole Christian world, and whether historically correct or not, as the accepted day of the commemoration of the event, it has become a festive occasion of reverence.

Early there were connected with it outward denonstrations of joy, indicating the great benefit onferred upon mankind by the ushering into the world of Him who taught the true faith. And these demonstrations have continued to this day. Merry-making and the endeavor of all to make others happy and to feel that it is in remembrance of a day which broke the dark clouds of heathenism and lit the bright sun of Christianity to enlighten mankind became the custom and the rule. And though the materialism of succeeding ages has gradually in-vaded the sanctity of the religious feeling, the spirit pervading it of old to strew the germs of happiness around you and make all know that a day of happis has come is still alive. The poetic elevation of timent which once pervaded the celebration of the day is neither so thorough nor so outspoken, but the realistic tendency of greeting each other with a warm hand, of distributing gifts that make the ment of others—this is the manner of merrymaking on the festival of Christmas at present; and while religious people devote a part of the day to the du-ties they firmly believe required of them, they nevertheless adopt the ways of the world and make merry themselves and others according to the ways

Who does not think of the little folks on such an ceasion? From time immemorial Christ-kindchen, orrupted into English as Kriskringle, has been the harbinger of joys to them—of joys adapted to their limited and childish understanding. In times past a moral lesson whs connected with it, and Knecht Ruprecht, changed with us into Santa Claus or St. Nicolaus, gave praise to the good and administered eproof to the disobedient and unruly, and distributed is gifts in proportion. And how often was it not cient to correct the evil ways of a child by the mark that if it persist Ruprecht, or Santa Claus, the Christ-kindchen (or Kriskringle) will remember ngs on the day of his appearance?

But while most of these poetic and religious tra-itions are more and more waning away the festive

A Young Girl Makes Four Attempts to Strangle Herself. Annie F. Goult, a girl of Ili fame, residing with her over, Henry Gerken, at No. 18 Greene street, was early last evening in a great state of excitement owing to a quarrel with him. Her story is that she owing to a quarrel with him. Her story is that she had become tired of life and desired to go back to her mother in Brooklyn, but that he refused to let her go, but, as she says in the end, put her out of the house. By some means she got back again, and, after continuing the quarrel for some time, finally, in a fit of rage, attempted to ommit suicide by hanging herself in one of the r. toms. She was promptly cut down, however, and, he ing given in charge to the police, was taken to the Eg, this precinct station house, where she was placed in a cell for safety. Soon afterward, however, the door, man found her black in the face and that, she had attempted strangulation with her garter. She was relieved, and, being closely watched, was soon found endeavoring to choke out life with her apron string, and a few moments later made a third attempt to the same end with her stocking. Sergeant (Drystie, as a last resort to prevent her a complishing her purpose, had her hand-curfed. She will be taken before Justice Dodge this merning.
